Continuing Education courses may be cancelled if insufficient enrollment warrants. If a Continuing Education course is cancelled by the College, tuition will be refunded in full. If the course is taught and one decides to drop, withdraw, or not come to class, normally no refund is given. Minimum number of students is required for a course to be taught. If fewer than the minimum number are enrolled by the start date of the class, usually the class is cancelled. Normally students under the age of 16 years may take Continuing Education courses with the written approval of his/her parent or guardian. Some courses are not available to minors due to South Carolina laws and/or the discretion of the instructor. Senior citizens pay the same fees as others for all courses as advertised.
